

Lecturer in Geography – Old Dominion University

Old Dominion University's Department of Political Science and Geography invites applications for a lecturer position in its geography program to begin in August 2018. Preference will be given to candidates who can teach a variety of undergraduate courses in human geography and geographic techniques. Approximately one-quarter of the position entails GIS lab management. GIS lab management duties include coordinating with technology services for software installation and related issues, equipment inventory, coordinating lab schedule, and facilitating campus and external GIS activities. Other duties include advising undergraduate students in the major and other contributions of service to the department and college as needed. A Masters or PhD in geography or closely related field and proficiency in the use of geospatial technologies are required.

Old Dominion University is a residential and research-extensive public institution with a student enrollment of 25,000 including approximately 5,000 graduate students, and a full time equivalent diverse and multicultural faculty of over 850. The university's primary campus is located in Norfolk, VA, one of the seven cities that make up the historic Hampton Roads region of Virginia, a major recreational area with a population of 1.7 million near the Atlantic Ocean and Chesapeake Bay.

To apply, submit a cover letter outlining your teaching interests and knowledge of geospatial technologies, CV, statement of teaching philosophy, evidence of teaching effectiveness, unofficial graduate transcripts, and contact information for three professional references to <https://jobs.odu.edu/>. Review of applications will begin April 2, 2018 and continue until the position is filled. Inquiries regarding the position should be directed to the search committee chair, Dr. Thomas Chapman (techapma@odu.edu). More information about the geography program can be found at <https://www.odu.edu/pols-geog/geography>

Old Dominion University is an equal opportunity, affirmative action institution. Minorities, women, veterans, and individuals with disabilities are encouraged to apply.